Break	OmniWatch — after B	—	—
C	They replaced the cashier with a robot... now they're bringing the humans back	~20%	3
End	End of show	—	—

The show in three sentences

A face match, a plate reader and a police sergeant each said a camera proved it was her, and three innocent women paid for it with jail time or a court summons until their own records cleared them. The same kind of watching is in your grocery store: carts with cameras, baskets that ping the ceiling, cameras that log your aisles and your plate. Then the exhale: the fast-food chains are admitting you hated the robots and are bringing people back, and here is how to get one.

The ride

Dread builds through A's first two women (gunpoint, 108 days, 86 hours behind a shut door), eases when Chrisanna Elser beats the sergeant with her own car's cameras, and lands on a fix Jeff does live; B stays uneasy but practical, and C closes light.

Decisions before we write

- A beats 5–8 (Isaacs, Elser) are new and not yet searched. Beats 2–4 reuse the 9/29 Lipps clips (A beat 2 WEAK). The Fargo chief's apology is now only an alt for A beat 3.
- 🚨 Flock was ruled overdone, and a scan shows Elser's case was a Flock hit too, so two of three women are Flock cases. Keep the brand, or say "a license-plate camera"?
- A says keep your location history; B says turn location off for store apps. Both can air, but Jeff says plainly that the history can also be subpoenaed.
- B beat 2 (Target basket): the rework note says cut it; the producer ruled 9/29 to keep it. Not cut. Your call.
- Google's default auto-delete is unverified. Jeff says "check yours." Lipps is 50, under 55+.

A. THE CAMERA SAID IT WAS YOU... AND YOUR PHONE MAY BE DELETING THE PROOF IT WASN'T

In one sentence: A face-recognition match, a plate-reader hit and a sergeant's "you know why I'm here" put three innocent women in jail or in court, records cleared all three, and the location history on your phone may be deleting yours on a timer.

Peg: Angela Lipps filed a $10 million suit Sept 15; Lindsey Isaacs testified at a U.S. Senate hearing Sept 23.

Weight: ~50% of show · 7 clip beats

#	Beat	Who	What happens	Clip
1	The hook	You (the viewer)	A camera or computer says it's you, police treat it as proof, and 16 people are known jailed on face-match misses alone.	JEFF
2	Arrested at gunpoint	Angela Lipps, 50, Elizabethton, Tennessee	Police arrest her in July 2025 while she cares for a neighbor's four kids, for bank fraud in North Dakota.	HAVE · HORIZONTAL — ABC News 4 / WCYB (9/29 WEAK); want Lipps herself on WDAY
3	The match	Former Fargo detective, named in her suit	Instead of using surveillance footage, police run the suspect's fake-ID photo through Clearview AI, and it returns her.	HAVE · HORIZONTAL — ABC News 4 / WCYB , attorney on the match; alt: Fargo chief's March apology
4	108 days	Angela Lipps	She sits 108 days with no bail and no interview until bank records clear her; she loses her home and car.	HAVE · HORIZONTAL — CBS News , jail and release
5	The wrong Durango	Lindsey Isaacs, wrongly accused driver	Witnesses saw a maroon Durango at a triple-fatal crash; a plate reader caught her black one, and she's charged.	FIND · HORIZONTAL — Isaacs interview (CNN, 404 Media, Fox 35)
6	86 hours	Lindsey Isaacs	She tells U.S. senators her cell door wasn't opened for about 86 hours; her car had no damage.	FIND · HORIZONTAL — Isaacs' Senate testimony (Fox 35 Orlando, USA Today)
7	"You know why I'm here"	Chrisanna Elser, Colorado driver	Her doorbell records a sergeant accusing her of package theft; asked for his video, he says she can see it in court.	FIND · VERTICAL — Elser's doorbell exchange, via

				CBS Colorado or FOX31
8	Her car was her alibi	Chrisanna Elser	Her Rivian's cameras logged her route; weeks later the chief emails "nicely done btw" and drops the summons.	FIND · HORIZONTAL — CBS Colorado interview with Elser
9	Your alibi is on a timer	You (the viewer)	Police came months later; Google Maps Timeline can auto-delete after three months, so Jeff changes his, live.	DEMO

The fix

- Your alibi is on a timer. Records cleared all three: Lipps with bank statements, Elser with her car's cameras. And police came months later: about two months for Lipps, about six for Isaacs.
- Change auto-delete: Google Maps → Your Timeline → ... → Location & privacy settings → Auto-delete Timeline → 36 months, or off. (verify on Jeff's phone)
- Turn on backup: auto-delete must be off first. With backup on, your Timeline survives a lost or broken phone. Works on iPhone too, in the Google Maps app. (verify)
- Know your other records: how long your doorbell and dashcam keep footage, and that bank statements show where you were.
- Say it plainly: that history can clear you, and it can also be subpoenaed. Your call.

Gaps

- △ Beat 1: the 16 (Policing Project, to Fox) counts face-recognition cases only. Isaacs and Elser are not in it.
- △ Beat 2: "at gunpoint" is her side's account. Attribute it.
- △ Beats 3-4: Clearview AI, 108 days and "no one interviewed her" are new figures; the 9/29 outline had "months" and an unnamed AI tool. Pull the complaint. Suit date: Sept 15 here, Sept 16 per MPR.
- △ Beats 5-6: which Senate committee held the hearing. Outlets say 13 days in jail; the brief says about 10 in maximum security. Isaacs' state (I-4, Fox 35 Orlando: likely Florida).
- △ Beats 7-8: Elser's accusation came from a Flock hit (per 9NEWS, FOX31 titles). "Nicely done btw" and the discipline (9NEWS) need the source loaded.
- △ Beat 9: Google's default auto-delete isn't on its help page. One tester who turned Timeline on Sept 14, 2026 found it set to 3 months. At that setting, Isaacs' proof would have been gone before troopers knocked; say "could have been."

B. YOUR GROCERY STORE IS WATCHING EVERY STEP YOU TAKE

In one sentence: The new AI grocery carts point cameras into your basket and out at the aisle, store baskets carry beacons that talk to the lights overhead, and home-store cameras log which aisles you walked and read your plate, but you can switch off the part that ties it to your phone.

Peg: Instacart says it tripled Caper Cart deployments in a year, now 100+ cities in 15 states, rolling at Kroger, ShopRite, Schnucks, Sprouts, Wegmans, Weis and Geissler's.

Weight: ~30% of show · 3 clip beats

#	Beat	Who	What happens	Clip
1	The AI cart	Grocery shopper with a Caper Cart	The cart has cameras into your basket and out at the aisle, a location tracker, and ads by where you stand.	HAVE · VERTICAL BROLL — Instacart. Meet Caper Cart (CROP)
2	The beacon	Store worker who filmed it (Elijah, per his TikTok)	He films the black box on a store basket and calls it a tracker; 3.4 million people watch.	HAVE · VERTICAL — TikTok @user60342208753
3	The cameras	Lowe's, per its privacy statement	Cameras log which aisles you walk and how long you stay; some parking lots read your plate.	HAVE · HORIZONTAL — NBC Connecticut. plate readers at Lowe's
4	The fix	You (the viewer)	Jeff shuts off location and Bluetooth for store apps on his phone, live.	DEMO

The fix

- iPhone: Settings → Privacy & Security → Location Services → each store app → Never. Then Settings → the app → Bluetooth off.
- Android: Settings → Apps → the store app → Permissions → Location → Don't allow. (verify on Jeff's device)
- With location and Bluetooth off, the basket tracks a basket, not you. The cameras and plate readers don't need your phone; those you can't switch off.

Gaps

- △ Beat 2 is Target's basket. Kept (producer, 9/29): it went viral, but don't lean on the brand in copy.
- △ Beat 2: the "tracker" claim is his; Snopes confirmed the beacon tracks the basket and the store app ties it to you. Air it with that caveat.
- △ Beat 3: no named person. It's Lowe's own privacy statement plus plate-camera footage.
- Jeff's Jan 22 show covered store tracking. New here: the AI carts and the beacon.

C. THEY REPLACED THE CASHIER WITH A ROBOT... NOW THEY'RE BRINGING THE HUMANS BACK

In one sentence: After years of kiosks and AI drive-thru voices, Burger King says customers drove off rather than talk to the bot, and McDonald's starts retraining more than two million workers to be nicer to you.

Peg: McDonald's "Make It Golden" hospitality training starts Oct 5, two days before air. Burger King's tech chief said Sept 23 that pilot restaurants saw drive-offs.

Weight: ~20% of show · 3 clip beats

#	Beat	Who	What happens	Clip
1	The robot fails	Drive-thru customer filming an AI order	The AI voice gets the order wrong again and again while the customer films it.	HAVE · VERTICAL — @typical_red_head_ or @kristinealis , call later
2	They drove away	Chakri Somisetti, Burger King VP of brand technology	He says pilot restaurants saw drive-offs because guests didn't want to talk to a bot.	HAVE · HORIZONTAL — NBC News , Burger King AI , found 9/29 (WEAK)
3	The humans come back	McDonald's worker (unnamed)	McDonald's starts hospitality training for 2 million-plus workers Oct 5, while still rolling out its AI voice.	HAVE · HORIZONTAL — Ecomix Simple , McDonald's retraining , found 9/29 (WEAK)
4	Get a person	You (the viewer)	Walk in and order at the counter, or ask for a person at the speaker.	JEFF

The fix

- Want a person? Walk in and order at the counter. McDonald's says it wants an employee on hand for anyone who prefers one. (verify at the store)
- At the speaker, ask for a person. (verify what works at each chain) Burger King's human option isn't live yet.
- Watch the order screen as you talk and fix it before you pay; check the bag before you leave the lot.

Gaps

- ⚠ Beat 1: Jeff won't record his own drive-thru test. This needs a real customer's fail clip, and the famous ones are older (Taco Bell, McDonald's 2024). Old footage is fine, the peg is new.
- ⚠ Beat 3: no named McDonald's person. The retraining is a company announcement.
- ⚠ Don't say "McDonald's is hiring cashiers" (not found) or "Burger King is ditching the bot" (voice AI is still in about 1,500 drive-thrus).
